Design Firm Forms Foundation to Help Charities

Aqueduct is a new organization for Upstate South Carolina that's mission will be to conduct resources into the community and assist charities that are in need! The "aqueduct" is the perfect picture of bringing resources into a community and stands as a symbol of Jesus as "living water" as the foundation will have an evangelical focus. The foundation is the brain child of Locke Design Omnimedia.

After considering the focus of the ministry, a group of concerned citizens realized that most community issues were already covered by existing charities and organizations. Thus Aqueduct was formed to help charities through a variety of ways including monetary grants, free counseling from board members and the creation and execution of fundraisers. Charities may apply to Aqueduct for grants and assistance with any project.

The graphic design firm has assembled a board of directors to drive the ministry and to direct various programs. Aqueduct's board of directors are Crystal Boyles- Clemson University, Johnson Dorn- Our Father's House Ministries, Keith Farner- Anderson Independent Mail, Jim Jolly- Logan-Jolly & Smith Attorneys, David Locke- Locke Design, Carol Tatum- Locke Design Brand Ambassador, Chesley Tench- Locke Design, Dan Worden- Synnex Corporation, Kylie Yerka- Anderson Independent Mail.

Citizens or businesses wishing to get involved should contact Locke Design at 800-648-0683. Aqueduct is in need of volunteers and donors. We will announce our first fundraiser in mid-summer as well as unveil our website.
